2. Highlight most successful activities of your Geoparks Week 2013:

Among the activities highlights two of them:

- The "Geology Training Day" for environmental volunteers for the great participation (over 60 participants), which performed an introduction to the geology of the Cerro del Hierro Natural Monument, with a explain of karst morphology in the area called calizas chicas (little limestone).
- The "Mineralogy and Rocks Workshop for school" taught by a company partner of the Geopark. This activity, which involved an introduction about geology and the use of geological resources today, was performed for various groups of students of different ages, from schools of the town of Cazalla de la Sierra.
